

Director's Biography

Amy Lee Ketchum

Amy Lee Ketchum is an animator based between Los Angeles and Philadelphia. In addition to filmmaking, she is also engaged in critical writing about visual culture on topics such as the Situationists, the Internet, and Avant-Garde animation. She holds a double BA in Architecture and Art from UC Berkeley and an MFA in Animation from the University of Southern California. Her 2013 film, "Two Ghosts," was a National Finalist for the Student Academy Awards, and was honored at the 10th Annual Focus on Female Directors Night in 2015. Lee Ketchum's essay Humanity at Play: New Babylon and the Internet, will be published with a collection of other writers by Routledge this year.