A COLLABORATION IN CLAY:
Scott Rosenthal and Pam Lethbridge

Artists' Statement

Once we discovered our individual work complemented each other, we embarked on an experiment. From the start of this project we decided to take turns, working separately. We discovered our contrast of color, texture and story telling, created a new narrative. The resulting composite conveys the playfulness we seek in our individual work.

Our approach to this collaboration was for Scott to first create an idea for Pam to interpret. After he constructed and fired each hand built ceramic piece, he had to let it go as he handed it over to her. Pam then hand built each ceramic figure to find a home in Scott's architecturally inspired work. Through out this journey no dialogue between us took place, which allowed our work to merge organically.
